This workbook will help you identify majors and careers that best suit your interests, skills, and values. This is a process, so take time to complete the activities and reflect on them to determine the majors and careers you want to pursue. Meet with an advisor in the Explore Center or Career Services to assist you as you work toward choosing a major and career.
Recognizing your interests, skills, and values is important for personal and career satisfaction. Careers that intersect with all three will likely be a good fit. Assessing yourself is one way to help identify your interests, skills, and values. Follow the steps below to learn more about yourself in these areas.

1. Spend Time Career Dreaming
   - What did you want to be when you were a kid?

   If you could choose any career, what would it be and why?

   What is one career you have considered, but decided against and why?

   What patterns do you see coming through your answers to the questions in Step 1 and your selections in Step 2 (e.g. I like solving problems for people).

   2.
   3.
RESEARCH MAJORS AND CAREERS

Researching majors and careers allows you to see how your interests, skills and values relate to different fields and can introduce you to options you have not yet considered. Use the resources below to help you begin your major and career research.

Research Majors

Use the Undergraduate Catalog (catalog.unl.edu) and meet with faculty and/or an academic advisor in your majors of interest to find the following on each:

- What classes are required by the College and the degree?
- Is an introductory or exploratory course offered in the major?
- What are typical career paths for students graduating with this major?
- What are the current opportunities or challenges and/or emerging areas of research in the discipline?
- What skills do I need to be successful in the major?

Research Careers

Interview professionals in careers of interest to gain personalized information through questions such as:

- What is a typical work day like for you?
- What do you enjoy most and least about your job?
- Who do you interact with most and in what ways?
- How did you get your start in this field?
- What other positions might be available in this field?
- What advice would you give to someone planning to go into this field?

Use online resources for your research by visiting careers.unl.edu/explore.

- Work Schedule
- Salary
- Employment Projections

EXAMINE MAJORS AND CAREERS

Understanding how majors and careers relate to each other is a critical component in your exploration. Different majors can often lead to the same career and there are several majors that can lead to a variety of careers. The following exercises will help you evaluate choices which may be a fit for you.

Evaluate Major and Career Options
